

FORTNITE BATTLE ROYALE

BASIC CONCEPT

TPS GAME

4 WAYS TO PLAY

1. "Save the World" is a PVE game mode where players fight against zombies.
2. Battle Royale is a PVP mode. In this mode up to 100 players are dropped onto a map where they must search for weapons and resources to go against other players. Last man standing is the winner (think Hunger Games).
3. Creative – Make your own map and then play pvp.
4. Playground – Similar to royale only once a player is eliminated from the game, they can respawn and continue playing. This is also pvp

This game is more cartoony than realistic and there is no blood or gore involved.

Hit points are registered as numbers on the screen and when a player is eliminated they simply disappear, dropping all their loot for anyone else to gather. There is also a crafting mechanism where players gather resources such as wood or steel and can then use those resources to build forts, walls, stairs, etc.

The playing field is constantly shrinking as time goes on forcing players to move into smaller and smaller playing areas.

This is done by "The Storm" which is indicated by a blue or purple circle on the map. If one is caught in the storm they will continually take damage until they either escape the storm or are eliminated within it.

FORTNITE IS RATED TEEN

Parents should research and monitor this game closely before deciding if it is right for your child to play.

Party Hold to chat

Players earn different aesthetic upgrades to their character and weapons, similar to costumes. This can be done by playing games or matches or with what is known as "microtransactions" where players pay real money to buy items within the game. The most popular of these items is the "Battle Pass".

There is an inherent danger in some of the game modes such as 50 vs 50, squads of 4 or even duo's. Here players are split into different teams and the game is played as stated above. However players can choose to communicate with each other if they want to.

This communication with strangers should be monitored VERY carefully as it is not censored in any way and players can be of any age or lifestyle.
